Dear Mrs. Manley:

I sent the telegram to you yesterday afternoon, telling you that we had not received the shipment of uniforms, nor had it been received at the Express Agency. I waited until the last delivery, thinking that it might come, but since I did not leave the office until after 5:30, I know that it did not come.

I do hope the telegram reached you in time to contact the Wilson Sporting Goods Company, so that you were able to get some information concerning the shipment.

You may add the sixty-cent charge to your next remittance for board and room. I did not send the telegram collect.

Yours very truly,

M. E. Sumner
